

Answers To Your Common Questions

Acknowledgements:

The American Cancer Society, Inc. (ACS) (cancer.org) has engaged Hesperian Health Guides (hesperian.org) to lead the development of this booklet on basic cancer information for newly-diagnosed cancer patients and their caregivers. This booklet is based on content which was previously adapted from original ACS materials by Johns Hopkins Center for Communications Programs in collaboration with ACS partners in East Africa.<sup>1</sup> Some content is also based on qualitative research conducted in Kenya, Uganda, and Ethiopia. Limited content was adapted from Hesperian Health Guides,<sup>2</sup> MacMillan Cancer Support, and the U.S. National Cancer Institute. Find links to these sources and other online resources on page 46 of this booklet. A special thank you to the following individuals from Hesperian Health Guides for text (Paula Worby), graphic design (Rosemary Jason), and illustrations (Rodney Kawaayi).

Permissions for Printing and Distribution by Authorized Users:

ACS promotes the sharing and use of easy-to-understand and scientifically-accurate information about cancer with patients and their caregivers. ACS considers any individual, organization, or health institution to be an “Authorized User” with permission to copy or reproduce and distribute unlimited copies of this booklet in its entirety, provided that such reproduction and distribution is solely for personal, informational, educational, and non-commercial purposes, and copyright credit is given to the American Cancer Society, Inc. ACS also encourages Authorized Users to place their organization’s name and contact information on the back cover of the booklet so that readers may follow up directly with them to learn more about local cancer services and support.

All other uses of this booklet, including extracting and using only portions thereof, will require ACS’s prior written consent.

This booklet has a companion flipchart for health workers to use with patients and caregivers.
